Easex County Teachers The meeting of the Essex County Teach ers' Association in Mount Hebron school house, Upper Montelair, Monday, was one of the largest and most interesting that has been held for several years. Nearly one handred teachers and superintendents were present Professor John F. Woodthe todaye for the Training of cachers of New York, delivered an in resting address on "Hints on Object

A. Cornish, of Millington, N. , read a carefully prepared paper on the feaching of English Literature," which ogaged the close attention of his hearers. Prof. Frederick Starr, of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, on the "Development of Written Speech." He claimed that written language was developed from the rudest ideographs of the earliest man, such as the American Indian, through pictographs and hieroglyphs, to phonographic writing like that of civilized nations of the present day. The lecture was illustrated with Egyptian, Indian, Chinese, Japanese and other systems of written language.

At the close of the meeting the association decided to organize a county normal class to meet once a month. County Superintendent Charles M Davis. Principal C. J. Majory and Miss Marie L. Peterson, of East Orange, were appointed a committee to prepare a plan of organization After a collation, which was served by the trustees and ladies of the Mount Hebron district, had been enjoyed, the members, guided by Mr. Charles E. Me

Dowell, went to Cliffside quarry, where they inspected the machinery and the quarrying process.

Our County Scholarships at the State College. By a law of the State, passed March 31, 1890, a free scholarship at the State College, (Rutgers Scientific School, New Brunswick, N. J.) is opened to students in each Assembly District of our Sta'e. Any young man who is now, or in September will be 16 years of age, may try the examination. Four full ourses of liberal and scientific study are open at this institution, I, a course in Civil Engineeting and Mechanics; 2, a course in Chemistry and Agriculture; 3, a course in Electricity; 4, a special course in Agriculture. Students who apply are examined in, 1, Arithmetic; 2, Higher Algebra through Quadratic Equations; 3, the whole of Plane Geometry; 4, Eng lish Grammer; 5, Geography; 6, History of the United States, and 7, the Elementary Principles of Physics ("Natural Philosophy") and Chemistry. The law provides 'that where more than one pro. Oil Cloths, Linoleums, between talkers and readers," Townsend said at one of "The Neighbors" meets: from the same Assembly District shall pass the examination, all who pass shall receive appointment in the order of the receive appointment in the order of the excellence of their examination, until the entire number (60) have been appointed from the State. There is no doubt that all who are able to pass the examination will this year receive appointment from the State Superintegration. The examination will the State Superintegration. The second floor is the fitting and upholstery department, and the thire-floor is the bargain-room, a feature of the shoor is the bargain-room, a feature of the business which, when the publick understands it, will make this room the resort of all elever buyers in the city. This floor is connected with the main building by a corsered bridge, which spans Campbell street and makes it easy of access, it is finished in varnished yellow pine, the natural color, and lighted to perfection. Here will be edicated goods from every department in the business. Such goods as sell slowly, or are bought in job lots at very flavorable prices, or are perhaps a little out of style. All these, whether they pertain to the hitchen or the parlor, the bedroom or the laundry, will gravitate into the flargain floom and as they will be marked at hair vailes, the procession of bargains will mareh quick and change daily.

WILL THE CAPITAL BECOME THE NATIONAL CENTER OF LETTERS!

NATIONAL CENTER OF LETTERS:

are talking about a new poet that has sprung up in their midst. One of the conceits of "The Neighbors" club is an alonymous box, in which hits of poetry are drouged by madest authors to be read. Club Liberarian Spotford Mrs. Springer are dropped by modest authors to be read at the next meeting. Out of this box have come such a large number of posters

Washington, May 22.—As a literary center the national capital is rapidly becoming noted throughout the world. It that no little curiosity has been around that no little curiosity has been around the world. has no large publishing interest, other concerning their author than that maintained by the government, but a large number of writers live and club in search of the man or women work here. There is in Washington a whose early life had been passed within the club known as "The Neighbors," sound of ocean's roar, never an which is distinctively literary and musi-could come from a landsman.

LIBRARIAN SPOFFORD. cal. The fortnightly meetings during matching its hue, the winter months bring together many of the brightest men and women of the capital. Here may be seen such famous islands that like persons as Mrs. Frances Hodgson Bur- to rich and varinett, who lives in a charming house on ous gems inlay Massachusetts avenue, with the families the unadorned of the chief justice, Attorney General bosom of the Miller and any number of senators on either side of her; George Kennan, the school the eye Russian specialist, much of whose mail and mind of Mrs. from Russia and Siberia cones to Wash Springer to see ington disguised under bogus superscrip and tell of things invisible to most of us tions; George Bancroft, the historian; when she came to stand by the multi-Joaquin Miller, who used to have a log tude of great waters, through which she Joaquin Miller, who used to have a log cabin on the hills overlooking the city, beholds Jehovah riding upon his l and Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, the and chariots of salvation novelist, who lives in a quaint old house in quaint old Georgetown.

At one of these "Neighbors" meetings

there recently met four persons who are a poem, by the way, that hadengaged in writing the fives of a trio of of the "anonymous box" and me great men of the war era-John Hay list-ners to tears: and John E. Nicolay, authors of The Century "Life of Lincoln;" George Gor-ham, who is engaged upon a "Life of War Secretary Edwin M. Stanton," and Mrs. Katherine Chase, who is writing And the wind monned drearily.

The storm came down; the gun was fired; a ship was seen on the breakers; hut and cabin were emptied of strong hearts and hands eager to do all in their power to save the imperiled lives. But the sea rolled in so madly that even the life boat could not be launched. the life of her father, the great chief justice. Many newspaper men may be seen in these gatherings, among the more soff, of The New York Herald, who, to his $10,000 a year salary from Mr. Benlife boat could not be launched.

With that sharp cry of despair.

The cry of a child had been heard from the wreck; its plaintive notes had inspired the men on shore to redoubled but vain efforts. The life boas will less A lucky man, Mr. Nordhoff, for his newspaper work takes but a mere fragment of his time. Weeks often go by without a line from him appearing in print: but if there are diplomatic disrbancles or international complications, Mr. Nordhoff is expected to be heard from, and this is an expectation which is arely disappointed. The field of diplo-nacy is peculiarly his own.

Hark! Borne over the waters,
Ringing out strong and clear,
Came he voice of a woman singler.
And listening, they could hear
The words in the luil of the tempest.
(Ch, love so undefiled.)
They knew 'twas the voice of the mother.
Singing to calm her child,
And as she sang to her darling—
Knowing that death was so near—
She caught the words she so needed,
Her own heart to strengthen and cheer. George Alfred Townsend is often seen with "The Neighbors." He is the greatest newspaper correspondent which this country has produced, so great that when his work is mediocre or inferior, as it sometimes is, of course, it sells as readily as ever and is read with almost as much avidity. Townsend is one of those correspondents who learn fittle but think much; a single fact passing through his mental hopper is broken into one is swollen ur hear no more, a came a luli, and clear as clear could be, doawn's morning breaks, and earth's vain shadows fice;" and strong and full, like prisoned bird set with the imagination to be as large as

And strong and full, like prisoned bird set free—
"In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me;"
A heavier surge of the breakers—they hear they voke no more.
And though they watched and waited,
Nought but the breakers' roar.
And the moan of the wind, now dying,
Came to the listening ear;
And they knew the voice of the singer
They never again should hear.
And when the night had wasted,
And morn came, cold and gray.
On the wet and, near the mooring.
A fair, dead woman lay.
To her heart was still enfolded
A tiny fair haired girl,
With face like a wayside flower.
And pure as an ocean pearl.
And the sun broke through the shadows.
And looked on the dead and smiled;
And they knew as they kneit about her
Twas the singer and her child.
Mrs. Springer is one of the most. "I am a phonograph; thto which ten thousand men have talked, and their recorded conversations are a storehouse, on which I draw at will by simply turning the crank." The government incidentally encourages authorship. Some of the best writers of the day, most earnest and best equipped specialists, are govern-students who wish a college education such as has never before been given in this State. It is to be hoped that many of the brightest acholars of our schools will avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded them by the State.

books and pamphlets in the library there is not one which he does not know as well as he knows the thorough bred horse which he rides every fair day. He knows these books so well that he can tell you the range of their contents, the names of authors, date of publication, and the computative value of works on a given subject. Spofford is such a complete and tufallible index to the entire library that senators and representatives have a habit of going to him and saying:

"Mr. Spofford, I am looking up this or that subject—where shall I find it?"

And without a moment's hesitation the librarian calls off the names of a half dozen or dozen books, and sends for them. The whole library is before him like the pieces on a chess board, and, of course, this is much better for the senator or representative than consulting in-
